MEDICAL DONOR CARDS

Idea by DAVID MALEH

PARTS OF YOU TO BE GIVEN AWAY UPON YOUR DEATH

BRAIN DONOR CARD

I, being of very sound mind, hereby will my brain upon death to

Lester Maddox

or, if said person be unable to accept it, than to

George Wallace

This donor brain is given for the specific purpose of transplanting it in lieu of the other brain, which is known to be sick and diseased.

SIGNED: _____

FOOT DONOR CARD

I herewith will my foot after death to:

Martha Mitchell

for the sole purpose of putting it into his (her) mouth. In the event he (she) is unavailable then try

Martha Raye

who has an equally big mouth.

Signature of Donor: _____

(sign your name here)

HEART DONOR CARD

Upon my death, I bequeath my heart to:
any slum landlord in New York as none of these individuals possesses any of their own.

Should it happen that none of the aforementioned are found, it shouldn't come as a surprise since they never are. In that event give the heart to:

any agent in the William Morris Office

Signed: _____

BODY DONOR CARD

Be it known that I herewith will my entire body
after death to Ralph Nader

In case he rejects it, then I will it to _____ Fidel Castro

because since it is defective, on him (her) I don't mind wishing it.

In case the second recipient rejects the body at-so, just put it in a sack and mail it to SICK Magazine. They'll take anything.

Here at the Drug Addiction Unit of this Hospital we thought it would be valuable to use your magazine in one of our programs. Since drug addicts tend to be a rather oppressed and humorless group, we felt that a program which was directed at humorously exploring the cultural inconsistencies and absurdities would do much to alter their attitudes about society. We believe your magazine would be extremely helpful and we hope that you would donate up to 10 copies to our drug unit.

I love watching him get dressed in the morning...

The cold shower. The leer. The shirt that's ready to take on the world. Everything he does is exciting.

Other men are so dull. So invisible. But Jack swings into a shirt like that as though it were a battle flag.

(Good old Van Verdon, the advertising writer. He wrote the first part of this ad and it's so funny, there's no need for a parody, so we'll just run the rest of the ad.)

Jack's their man. Absolutely. An ivy-covered stubbornness about the roll of that collar. A sneaky vanity about that tapered fit. Sass. Spirit. Red blood.

Gosh, I feel sorry for all those nice little ladies who get up at dawn and hover over a hot stove. This is the way mornings should be... in love in love in love.

(This ad was written by

VAN VERDON

the only man in the world who ever fell in love with a shirt.)

Let me make one thing perfectly clear... I will not be confused by the facts!

SICK REVIEWS THE ## • CANNON

William Conrad plays the title role of a fat private detective who makes everybody happy—except crooks and "Weight-Watchers." He never misses getting the criminal (when they use a .45 he uses a cannon). Weighing almost three hundred pounds, he can do everything well—except stay out of sight. His big gimmick is going all over the country solving crimes for police departments that are incapable of handling their own cases—cases that take real brains (which naturally covers the entire United States, including Alaska and Hawaii). His gargantuan shape also helps him extract confessions from criminals without any sweat. If they hesitate, he just threatens to sit on them. There is only one drawback to this series, however. Due to Cannon's huge protruding belly, viewers have to watch it on a wider screen.

• SARGE

Unless they want to be struck suddenly by a thunderbolt, the critics had better like this show. This is because "Sarge" deals with an ex-cop turned priest and "Somebody Up There" might not take too kindly if the program should get a bad rap. George Kennedy plays the role of this unorthodox priest. Not only does he use his former police training to purify his parish by tracking down sought-after sinners (which is pretty unorthodox in itself), but George shows no apparent desire to get married! How unorthodox can you get? Kennedy creates a new image of the priesthood, portraying Father Samuel Patrick Cavanaugh. While the regular fuzz give the criminals a right cross, he gives them the last rites. And when the cops at headquarters try to get a con to "sing," George does his best to get him to hum a few hymns. What it all boils down to is this: when the police save someone, that's pretty old hat. But if George saves them—Man, they're really saved!

• CADE'S COUNTY

Set in the great big empty western countryside (with plots to match) Glenn Ford portrays Sheriff Sam Cade in this contemporary western

NEW TV SEASON

STAUNCH—a terrible smell

that uses Chevys and pick-up trucks, instead of horses and covered wagons. This is fine—but Indians in hippie clothing? Glenn has very little to say, riding through this territory. That's because he gets paid by the mile, not the word. Occasionally, however, he forgets he's in a modern western and feeds his jeep oats and hay, thus establishing a television first—mainly the first time a jeep ever burped! Come to think of it, this show may give western purists a little heartburn too!

• LONGSTREET

Going on the premise that justice is blind, someone has finally figured out that an agent of justice could be in the same fix and still come out on top. And Mike Longstreet (James Franciscus) plays him—a blind insurance investigator. He no doubt got that way from writing all that fine print in those shifty insurance policies. Anyway, Franciscus is helped in tracking down wrongdoers (namely, anyone who tries to collect on a policy) by a white dog named PAX. To which the NAACP will certainly demand he also get a black dog, to avoid being called a racist. Longstreet gets additional help from an insurance company buddy (Mark Richman) and has a Girl Friday (Marilyn Mason). Now if he could only arrange to have her Monday through Saturday, he'd really have it made! Of course, he wouldn't get much work done. But, let's face it. Money isn't everything. Then again, neither is this series!

• FUNNY FACE

Pert and perky Sandy Duncan has finally made the big jump from off-Broadway to on-TV and one wishes the charming young miss the very best. Of course, she has several strikes against her. She isn't a widow, doesn't have any precocious children left over from a previous marriage, hasn't a father who isn't too bright, no collie dog that can do tricks, nor can she perform acts of witchcraft. Nevertheless, with all this against her, it looks like Miss Duncan shall overcome and become a favorite of TV audiences. If not, so what? We can always watch reruns of That Girl!

• SHIRLEY'S WORLD

The producers here state that this show is tailored to the talents of its star, Shirley MacLaine. But, judging from the sub-zero ratings, it's a terrible fit. And speaking of fits, that's exactly what the sponsors are throwing by now, after studying all the bad critical reaction. Shirley is supposed to be a reporter-photographer for a newsmagazine something like "Look," which has also fallen by the way-side. (Is this an omen?) She scurries about all over the world covering stories, and uncovering trouble. The latter she butts into at the drop of a flashbulb. And speaking of dropping—by the time this is printed, nobody would be at all surprised!

• THE FUNNY SIDE

Probably the most optimistic series title on the idiot box today, this poor man's "Laugh-In" is presided over by Gene Kelly who has danced his way into the hearts of America. Now, if he were really smart, he would "shuffle off to Buffalo"—away from this television fiasco before it sinks into the TV channels and is lost with all hands. The crew, by the way, consists of five couples, in different age groups, who react to a new theme each week, the way they believe a typical cross-section of America would react. They take a serious subject and show you the built-in laughs of the situation. One can see it all now—as the viewing audience laughs uproariously over the funny side of terminal cancer or bubonic plague. Definitely a laugh riot—for the Marquis De Sade!

• THE JIMMY STEWART SHOW

Actually, this whole idea started out as a one-minute spot commercial. But when Stewart finally got out the sponsor's message (in his impossibly slow drawl) it turned into a half-hour show for which they needed a plot. Failing that, they've come up with this format instead, one in which Jimmy is cast as a college professor. It's obviously a fantasy, as Stewart leads no student riots nor shows any scars from policemen's clubs or even a trace of mace. Jimmy's manner is homespun (complete with two pair of pants) and he actually likes his teaching job and the kids he teaches. (We told you it was a fantasy!) This program has such a large cast that you've got to like somebody in it! Such as Julie Adams, who plays his wife; John McGiver, a faculty colleague; a married son (Jonathan Daly); a daughter-in-law (Ellen Geer); a young son (Dennis Larson); and a grandson (Kirby Furlong). Ye gods! It's enough to give The King Family an inferiority complex!

• O'HARA, U.S. TREASURY

David Jansen finally does the flip side of the coin—going from a fugitive to tracking them down—for Uncle Sam—and for a lot of weekly loot. This show affords David a great opportunity—to learn enough about the inner workings of The Internal Revenue Service to get the best possible tax break, should those residuals ever come rolling in. He also handles cases dealing with the Secret Service and Customs. And occasionally, he even goes undercover—with any of the starlets who happen to be around the studio, that is. Definitely a lot of action here. Not with the show—with David Jansen!

• THE PERSUADERS

Roger Moore, formerly "The Saint," loses his halo—in a crap game—to his new associate, Tony Curtis. Moore plays the role of Lord Brett Sinclair, who supposedly inherited his wealth from an estate. While Tony plays himself—a kid from the Bronx who grew up and got rich the hard way—pretending to be an actor. They are thrown together by accident (which they're still trying to settle out of court) and spend their time looking for trouble as "The Persuaders." Namely, they try persuading war criminals to give themselves up; syndicate hoods to come along quietly; and most dangerous of all, persuading members of Women's Lib to visit their apartment. Now all they have to do is persuade their sponsors not to drop their option!

• GETTING TOGETHER

In this musical-type mish-mash, Bobby Conway (Bobby Sherman) and Lionel Pindexter (Wes Stern) play aspiring rock 'n' roll songwriters. The only problem is, every time they start to roll the audience starts to throw rocks. They are supposed to be a composer and a lyricist who are looking for that one big hit that will send them zooming to the top of the charts. But, unfortunately, the type of tunes they turn out can only send them to the top of the hospital charts. While waiting for that one big break they live in an antique furniture store. That way, they won't stand out as the only things that are cracked. They also drive around in an old hearse. Which is a pretty good idea, seeing as the show is dying!

• NICHOLS

This program could be better titled "Maverick Gets A Motorcycle" as James Garner again plays the same type part that made him famous on TV. Only instead of a horse, this time he saddles up a 1914 version of a Honda. But as usual, if the bad guys go that-a-way, timid Jim goes this-a-way. The basic plot has big Jim conned into taking on the sher-ill's job in an Arizona town dominated by mean Ma Ketchum, played by Neva Patterson. (Gadzooks! That Women's Lib is everywhere!) He is also up against her sneaky son (John Beck), a treacherous deputy sheriff (Stuart Margolin) and would adore being up against the saucy barmaid, played by Margot Kidder. Although everyone considers Jim a yo-yo, he always manages to pull the right strings to avoid violence—to himself, of course. Mostly he proves, once and for all, the power of positive cowardice!

• BEARCATS

This desert dud should have been called: "Have Stutz Bearcat—Will Travel." And if the two series heroes, Rod Taylor and Dennis Cole, were really smart that's exactly what they would do—keep traveling! The show's writers must have a hang-up about pre-World War I, as this western epic is also set in the year 1914. Maybe they feel they're just not making wars the way they used to. Or else they have an unnatural attachment to the memory of the Kaiser. Anyway, the two stars hire themselves out as trouble-shooters—shooting anyone that gives them trouble. Which means they'll probably spend the rest of the season trying to wipe out every TV critic in America!

• THE NEW DICK VAN DYKE SHOW

This series is filmed on location in Phoenix, Arizona, where the air is thin—and the plots are even thinner. Dick's hair is noticeably grayer—probably from watching several segments of the show at one sitting. Our hero plays the host of a TV talk show, which gives him lots of valuable practice, should he ever decide to talk himself out of his contract. His wife is played by Hope Lange (at least there's some hope on this program). Dick's manager is portrayed by Marty Brill, an up-and-going comedian; Nancy Dussault plays his dizzy wife; Fannie Flagg is the combination sister-secretary, which keeps at least some money in the family; and Angela Powell plays a know-it-all eight-year-old daughter. If she knows it all, then how come she signed for this program? The action keeps shifting back and forth between Dick's home and the studio. Which is pretty clever, seeing as a moving target is harder to hit!

• OWEN MARSHALL: COUNSELOR AT LAW

This ambulance-chasing series is the legal counterpart of "Marcus Welby, M.D."—elder, mature lawyer (Arthur Hill), plus young, headstrong associate (Lee Majors) giving us the ideal combination of youth and age. What else are audiences made of? Both lawyers are of course dedicated men—dedicated to upstaging each other. They handle all possible types of cases—but preter those that boost the ratings up. For female interest—and even the men might like them—there are two gals on the program: Christine Matchett as the daughter, and Joan Darling as the secretary. However, there are also two dangers attached to the show—namely, hernias from lifting all the heavy law books—and terminal boredom, from watching these shysters shlock!

• THE GOOD LIFE

Life, or at least twenty years at hard labor, should be handed out to everyone connected with this crime-time fiasco. The plot has Larry Hagman and Donna Mills playing a middle-class stockbroker and his wife who give up the split-level shtick in suburbia and split to the palatial estate of millionaire David Wayne. The latter portrays a kind, lovable, everyday type of tycoon who lives next door—to practically nobody. Larry and Donna are able to share the estate, swimming pool, champagne and caviar by hiring themselves out as butler and maid to Wayne and his sister, played by Hermione Baddeley. And speaking of badly, that's exactly the way they do their jobs. But nobody seems to notice. After all, who can get good domestic help nowadays?

• THE PARTNERS

A capsule critique of this show could be simply summed up as: "Get Smart Gets Integrated." But instead of the spy bit, Don Adams plays a cop called Crooke—which should please the anti-law-and-order-faction. He is aided and abetted in this comedic idiocy by Rupert Crosse, who plays his klutzy-colored-partner in fighting the forces of crime, evil and boredom. Oh well, two out of three isn't bad. After viewing this cops and robbers bomb, the F.B.I. will definitely place it on its Ten Least Wanted List. As will the rest of the nation, no doubt.

• THE D.A.

From the producers of "Dragnet" comes another drag. However this show has it made in terms of viewer identity, having in its cast: a Negro judge, a Mexican investigator, a woman lawyer, and a WASP district attorney with an Irish name, played by Robert Conrad. Conrad portrays Paul Ryan, a strong law and order candidate; Ned Romero is cast as Bob Ramirez, in charge of legwork (he watches chicks from the bottom of stairways); Julie Cobb is Deputy Public Defender Katy Benson (a poor man's Portia); and Harry Morgan is Conrad's boss, in charge of overall legal strategy and advanced rail-roading. This series is definitely an advance in courtroom drama as it only takes Conrad a half-hour to convict everyone he arrests. Perry Mason it took a full sixty minutes!

"... The sun is the center of our solar system. The planets outward from the sun are Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Venus, Neptune and Pluto. Now's the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country. It's a long way to Tipperary. It's a long way—"

Years ago most nations had a popular song that was identified with it. Since then there's been so much world conflict and change that nobody remembers these songs anymore. Just as well. These were songs of notions that were united. What the world needs now are ...

RED CHINA

("Slow
Boat to China")
(As Sung by Nationalist
China)

I'd like to get you in a slow choke,
Red China,
Especially Mao and Chou.
I'd like to squeeze you until your eyes pop
Or better yet, get an axe and—chop, chop!
We "real" Chinese don't like upstarts
Like you, Chou,
Occupyin' our mainland, so
Run, walk, hop, sprint, crawl
Or jump in the sea, all
Eight hundred million of you!

GREAT BRITAIN

("On the Road to Mandalay")

In the old U.N. Assembly,
Lookin' chilly as can be,
Sits an envoy representing
Her Britannic Majesty.
For the winds of change are stirrin'
And the currents seem to say:
"Why not leave, you British blighter?
Take your leave, just go away!
Hit the road, man, don't delay;
We're through playin' England's way,
And we don't care if the sun sets
On your Empire every day!
For Australia's on her own,
Bloomin' Injia's up and flown,
And those ruddy Yanks and Irish
Won't put up with any throne!"

GERMANY

("Rosalie")

Germany
Divided
Into east and west.
Since the war they've split you in two,
A sad lot
For you, mein Gott,
And unfair for a people
Who are so meek and mild,
Who ne'er caused any furors
Except two or three wars,
Ach, poor you,
Germany, you!

U.S.S.R.

("Glow Little Glow-Worm")

Grow, Mother Russia,
Get much bigger,
Grow with your finger
On the trigger.
Don't let the Czechs
Or Poles get too free;
If Hungary tries
Send your army.
Clamp down with firmness,
And it's certain
You'll keep your grip
On the Iron Curtain.
Call us imperialistic, though!
Grow, Mother Russia, grow.

ISRAEL

("Mrs.
Robinson")

Why not disarm, Mische Rubinstein?
Arabs love you more and more each day.
(Hey hey hey!)

They mean no harm, Mische Rubinstein;
Their missile sites are really just for show
(Ho ho ho! Ho ho ho!)

We'd really like to sell you weapons
Just in case they bomb,
But have to give them free to Viet Nam.
It isn't that we don't believe
Your situation's tough,
But simply that you're not corrupt enough!
Just don't despair, Mischa Rubinstein,
Relax, stop worrying and have some fun.
(Drop your gun!)

Don't have a care, for your Arab foes
Outnumber you a mere forty to one!

CUBA

("K-K-K-Katy")

C-C-C-Cuba, wonderful Cuba,
We don't have B-B-B-Betiste any more!
We made our land greeter,
Thraw out a dictator,
And let another—Fidel—come in
through the back door!
We're all f-f-free now;
Can't the world see now?
We can even c-c-criticize the powers,
Opposing the top bress,
Giving them loud sess;
Other countries' politicians, though,
Not ours!
C-C-C-Cuba, idyllic Cuba,
That this isle's a paradise
Some heve no doubt,
A feeling that's not clear
To others who live here—
We can herdly w-w-w-wait till we get out!

UNITED STATES

("California,

Here I

Come")

Uncle Semmy, don't be blue.
People somewhere must like you—
A land that Feels grand that
You're free with dough;
With hand out
They'll stend out
And they won't say "Yenk go home, blow!"
Giving millions without end
Should heve won you just one friend,
But where is ha? Better spend
Even more,
Poor Uncle Sam!

MAKE LAFF AND WAR!

IN-SICK-NIFICANT

AMBIDEXTEROUS—against the use of sugar.

Chicago: A former mobster-turned-extermimator was overheard asking a client: "Do you want me to rub out these bugs or just rough 'em up a little?"

Berkley: The price of Women's Liberation comes high. A young convert burned her bra—but unfortunately, she forgot to take it off.

Oklahoma City: A lady asked a gift counsellor for the proper thing to give someone on his eighty-fifth birthday, and was told: "A short-term loan."

Virginia: You-Can't-Win-'Em-All-Department: A local fellow tried to write his Congressman protesting against crime in the streets—but was mugged on the way to the mail box!

Philadelphia: You've got to have faith, baby: They say Oral Roberts placed both hands on the Liberty Bell—and the crack healed.

Wash., D.C.: Scandal on the shores of the Potomac: Panic has hit the Pentagon again, with the removal of their most important papers—the ones in the White House Mens' Room!

Greenwich Village: A young lady here reportedly lost her boy friend the hard way. Seems she bought him a water-bed—and the tide went out.

United Nations: After Nationalist China was ejected, one weirdo shouted: "One China—to take out!" But now the world is Kosher again—we have two sets of China.

Mayo Clinic: Heebits Are Hard To Break Dept: A doctor at this institution, who was formerly a writer, refused to operate on a patient—it wasn't his table!

Quincy, Mass.: Some idiot was told by his wife to make himself a T.V. Dinner—so he went ahead and ate his television set.

San Diego: Some weirdos recently opened a Chinese-German restaurant. You break open a fortune cookie and find a declaration of war. After eating here an hour later you're hungry again. But for power!

Sugar Bowl: A young lady announced she's through with athletics: "I went out with the football team, and they kept passing me around!"

Lake Tahoe: A famous singer here complained that the band accompanying him was so bad, that when they played "The Star Spangled Banner" people set down.

Idaho: In a recent poll on the state of the nation, a local chap quipped: "The country must be in pretty bad shape. Every time I call 'Dial-A-Prayer,' I get a busy signal."

San Francisco: With divorce you get egg-roll? A chap we know went to a Chinese wedding here, and all the guests threw fried rice.

Palm Beach: A local playboy was asked to contribute a homo for wayward girls—so he offered his apartment.

Hollywood: Some people never grow up. The mother of an author of X rated movies went to his apartment and washed his typewriter out with soap.

Fort Lauderdale: A local reporter uncovered the motto of a sun-worshipping colony's newspaper: "All the nudes that's fit to print." They only give you the bare facts.

Virgin Islands: You can tell the honeymoon is over. A guy complained: "My wife uses so much padding, she doesn't undress—she unpecks."

Beverly Hills: A big star told a fan magazine reporter that he always felt unwanted. It seems when he was born his parents sat up all night looking for loopholes in his birth certificate.

Texas: Inflation Note: A fellow robbed a bank here of over twenty thousand dollars—and they only charged him with potty theft.

SURREPTITIOUS—keep saying the same thing.

WE PRINT

NEWS OF THE MONTH

by FRED WOLFE

Louisiana: Now we've heard everything dept: An aging Peeping Tom developed weak eyes, so his friends chipped in and bought him proscription binoculars.

New York City: Recession Note. A guy got onto an elevator in Macy's, pulled out a gun, and hijacked the entire car over to Gimbel's.

Utah: A student was dropped from medical school, when he wrote a prescription to get a bottle of Dr. Popper.

Greece: Word has it that Jackie Onassis is making Aristotle a millionaire. Before he married her, he was a billionaire.

Fun City: A fellow about to be mugged on Broadway protested: "But I already gave in Central Park!"

London: The long-running romance of Diahann Carroll and David Frost resulted in the remark: "What's that mark on Diahann's neck? Frostbite!"

Madison Avenue: Shakespeare said the evil men do lives after them. In TV they call it reruns.

The Bronx: The police here recently had labor pains and prompted one wit to ask: "When these policemen call in sick, is that a cop-out?"

Brooklyn: Talk about luck. One resident here reported that his garbage was stolen and the police found it and returned it to him.

Indiana: Latest gag to make the rounds: "What do you think of the Indianapolis 500?" Answer: "They're all innocent!"

ON SALE NOW

REAL AD

Detroit: A retired bookie was asked to name the greatest gambler of all time, and replied: "Lady Godiva. She put everything she had on a horse."

New Jersey: Said a patient whose doctor is always on the golf course: "Nowadays the only people making house calls are burglars."

IF THE WORLD'S PROBLEMS CHILDREN

Script by GUY THOMAS

Besides being the perfect outlet for your kid's sneaky character, this game teaches him a valuable trade that might some day make him a national hero. Furthermore, all of the secrets included here haven't even been made secret yet. The greatest gimmick however, is that kids don't have to pay for this game. They have to steal it!

BAROMETER—lend a dime for parking.

An educational toy, this easy-to-assemble kit comes with an authentic-looking back alley, 6 miniature garbage cans, 14 live rats and the address of a slum landlord. Kids build it with their own hands, then have fun breaking the windows, throwing the garbage around, etc. Only drawback is, once the building becomes dilapidated it can't get repaired!

wondering. Namely, what's the next step? The only thing we can think of is...

WERE MADE INTO NS' GAMES

Art by ARNOLDO FRANCHIONI

Comes complete with gaseous soap suds, chemicals, assorted trash and crud. However there's no ugly smell or eye-watering effects since the pollution is disguised as pure air. Now kids can enjoy inhaling the poisonous fumes of their choice because it's pollution pure. Only trouble is, where to throw this game when you're finished with it!

ASTRAL—what you take on a nice day.

Just the thing to relieve the pent-up hostility of your child. Game starts with two kids, then escalates to four and before you know it the whole neighborhood is involved. Then you withdraw gradually. Included in the basic kit is diluted napalm, miniature bombs and life-size posters of two gooks for boynet practice. Fun for the whole family!

Continuing with our policy to stop conformity and start individualizing all aspects of our society, we now turn to one of the most conforming things in the business world today — namely, the business card. We feel they all tend to look alike. What we should have are...

ADVICE TO THE HIP-LORN

Dear Abbie:

Hey, all you strung out cats and chicks! Like, got a love problem? Some joker hanging you up or putting you down? Can't make the scene anymore? Well, cool it now, hear? Don't freak out. Just send in your bad vibes here, and like, let Dear Abbie straighten you... dig?

Man, don't get me wrong. I'm a radical like all the other hippies today, but like I just don't believe in burning my draft card. How can I compromise?

FLAKED OUT

Boil it!

In your opinion, what is the real danger of smoking pot?

HYPED UP

Having the light go out as they pass it to you!

I really groove this cat, dig? This cat really swings and just turns me on. I'd do anything for this cat. My question is should I continue making it with this cat—or try a real live boy?

PSYCHED IN

Do both, put a tiger in your tank!

I'm a lonely chick who would like to find a big broad-shouldered man with shiny white teeth. Must be a solid, upright type with a grand build. Can you help me find it?

REAL HASSLED

You don't want a man, you want a piano!

I'm having a little trouble with my love life. Clue me in, Pops—do you think Spanish Fly is healthy?

TAPPED OUT

Sure, I never heard one complain!

This new guy I'm seeing is real nowhere. He's ugly, has bad breath, flat feet, a weak back, poor eyes, is hard-of-hearing and has a nasty personality. Yet I love him. What should I do?

LIKE ZAPPED

Be a little more understanding. After all, nobody's perfect!

I'm just an average everyday chick who is a moderate in everything on the scene today. So tell me, how do I handle a thing like bra-burning?

JUICED OUT

Burn only one cup!

Quick, tell me what to do! I'm a grown man in love with a 12-year-old!

BAD SCENE

A 12-year-old what?

Talk about bad trips, last night I really freaked out. Man, was I sick! Would you believe it, I was in bed with 109!

REAL STONED

Wow, it must've been very crowded!

I hear that two of our hippie leaders joined the Army but were thrown out when they got to Vietnam. What happened?

STRAPPED IN

They were found making love, not war!

Somebody told me that Nixon's putting his foot down and going to stop all open lovemaking in public places. What do you think of that?

WIGGED OUT

I think he should, especially at his age!

There's a group today that holds the record for being the longest-discriminated-against minority group in America. We speak of none other than the American Indian. To make matters worse, the Indian is still being discriminated against. Which is what folks'll probably be doing to us, after reading our article on Indians—appropriately titled...

A SICK LOOK AT THE AMERICAN INDIAN

INDIAN HISTORY

Long before the first European explorers set foot upon the new continent of America, the Indian existed.

Estimates of the population at the time of Columbus can only be guessed as they were scattered everywhere

As the White Man moved further into America, the Indian was systematically cheated out of his land.

In an attempt to keep what was theirs, they soon made the White Man their enemy and went on the warpath...

INDIAN INTERVIEW

Many Americans today have never seen a real Indian living in the modern world. Therefore, we now bring you an exclusive interview with a contemporary Indian Chief.

I'm chatting here with Chief Running Nose. Tell me, Chief, how do you like your new reservation?

It good of U.S. Government to give Indian twenty choice acres in Death Valley here!

Tell me, what grows best on this new reservation?

Hate for the White Man!

I understand that Indians today not only work on reservations but also have outside employment as well. What do they do?

Weekdays instead of being victims of stolen land, we become underpaid minority factory workers!

CELIBACY--a disease of the brain.

One more thing, Chief, would you explain how an Indian tells time?

First we plant stick in ground...

...then we look up at sun while turning very slowly...

...then we raise arm over head and look at Timex on wrist!

Thank you, Chief... and now back to civilization!

INDIAN BUSINESS

Although greatly discriminated against, there are certain businesses that only an Indian can do well...

Indians still maintain their heritage of producing fine pottery.

Indians still maintain their image of posing for American coins.

INDIAN FALLACY

As with every minority group, falsehoods arise such as these fallacies that have sprung up everywhere...

Indians are strange because they wear beads and makeup constantly.

Indians can only speak if they are doing it in a sign language.

INDIAN FUTURE

Unless the Indian is given what is rightfully his, he may resort to drastic means, like go back on the warpath...

Indians may even attempt to regain Manhattan Island for themselves.

Under Indian control the White Man will finally be put in his place.

COMEDIAN OF THE MONTH:

PROFILE:

Probably the best of the new crop of "cerebral" comedians, David Steinberg has taken the country by storm. The black-sheep son of an orthodox Jewish family, he left his native Canada in 1968 to try his luck as an entertainer in Greenwich Village coffee houses. From there it was only a hop, skip and a kerplunk to the big time—with guest appearances on the Johnny Carson Show thrusting him into national prominence. He has even taken over the host duties of that show on occasion, increasing his stature with each performance. Today he appears all over prime-time TV variety shows, plays the country's top night clubs and records his sidesplitting monologues in best-selling albums.

David Steinberg epitomizes the "now" brand of comedy. The fact that he didn't change his name, dresses slightly mod and talks "up" to an audience bears that out. The following excerpts from his act show why David was chosen for this SICK accolade...

—A SAMPLING OF DAVID'S HUMOR—

• I'm writing a monster movie called "Porno." It's about a Japanese monster who rises up from the harbors of great cities and exposes himself.

• I love Jewish girls. I'm very big with them. I happen to be the Roger Vadim of Jewish girls.

• Know what my biggest aim in life is? To sexually satisfy the entire King Family right before their big Thanksgiving special.

• I was once on the Dating Game and the girl asked me, "Number One, would you kiss me goodnight on the first date?" To which I replied the most obscene things I would do to her if I ever got her along on the first date. Whereupon she registered her dull vegetable-like shock, turned and softly said, "Number Two..."

• I will now tell the story of Jezebel, who lived in the time of Elisha the Prophet, and was later immortalized by Frankie Laine. Then I will tell you the story of John, who worshipped God. You all remember God, from last week's sermon...

Since Playboy Magazine came out with its first film production "MACBETH" a lot of youngsters have become interested in this play. Only they're complaining that the language is so obscure they have trouble understanding it. To solve this problem, SICK asked writer Fred Walfe to translate the epic into more modern terms. He obliged with this even more obscure version of...

MACBETH

rewritten by FRED WOLFE

illustrated by JOHN LANGTON

We unfold the sad tale of Macbeth.
Who was Scotch (you could tell by his breath).
His enormous ambition
Caused a sickly condition—
With no future (a bad case of death).

After winning a war for his lord
Mac. thought he had it made—really scored.
But Macbeth blew his cool
What he heard made him drool
By predictions from some witchy broads.

Came upon three weird hags 'round an oven.
Wings of bats and toads' noses they'd shove in.
Said Mac. would wear the crown
And an armine-trimmed gown.
(Thought that they were wigged out from a love-in).

When Mac. relayed this news to his lady
She suggested he do something shady.
Since the king was their guest
Stick a shiv in his chest.
(This chick was no sweet Rosie O' Grady).

Lady M. started conning her man.
Gave a His and a Hers master plan.
If Mac. did what she stated
Scots would be liberated.
(Lady M. had read Betty Friedan).

Lady M. who of course, was quite daft
Forced Macbeth to give Duncan the shaft.
While the king was asleep
Shaky Mac. he did creep.
Slit his highness (which caused a slight draft).

Duncan's sons thought they should seek protection
So each split in a different direction.
Mac. was crowned king of Scots.
No one dared to draw lots.
Baots the hell out of holding elections!

Cat named Banquo posed Macbeth a threat
But his Mrs. said: "Mac., there's no sweat.
Have a Syndicate pair
Take him out of our hair.
I dig playing The Palace, my pet."

Banquo's ghost showed and Mac's nerves were shot.
At a banquet appeared the dead Scot.
All the guests gathered there
Heard Mac. rap with a chair.
Figured he was flipped out on some pot.

Though Macbeth was hung up on his guilt
Lady M. made his complexes wilt.
Seems his wife turned him on
When the guests were all gone.
She wore hot-pants with her mini-kilt.

Macbeth cried: "I am doomed. My, oh, me, oh!
Must consult with that wild witchy trio."
They gave Macbeth some hope.
Was a bum horoscope.
He was Aries (they thought he was Leo).

They told Mac. (who was weak in the knees):
"Have no fear, you're surrounded by trees.
Till the forest doth move
You'll continue to groove."
(But from moving leaves, Mac. got a breeze).

MacDuff's army used trees for a shield.
Camouflaged they then crossed the whole field.
Mac.—Alack and alas!
Thought 'twas hippies with grass.
From MacDuff's sword, he fatally reeled.

'Tis the end of the tale, as you see.
Macbeth got it; because of a tree.
Last words, we understand:
"Who said nature is grand?
To heck with all that Ecology!"

PATRIARCH—one who loves his country.

WARNING: Some of the material in this review is not suitable for children under 16. Not that it's obscene or anything, it's just badly written. This review is rated GP—which means it will make you so sick that's what you'll need—a GP. So read on at your own risk and don't throw it up to us that we didn't warn you. Just throw it up on the floor, that's all...

This picture opens in a splendid penthouse apartment atop the General Motors building where we find Dustin Hoffman cringing (terrified that Ralph Nader might recall him and his celluloid lemon back to Detroit for a complete overhaul. He has good cause for worry, as this pitiful production is missing a few essential parts necessary to make it go—like a plot, a script, and other basic equipment too numerous to mention.

Within the next ten minutes, Dustin "The Graduate" becomes a dropout—dropping out of the fortieth floor to the sidewalk be-less flash-back sequences that finally led to Dustin's wise decision to jump.

Instead of immediately littering the sidewalks of New York with his corpse, Dustin is next seen polluting his analyst's office with his psychotic problems. His analyst is Doctor Moses, who is not only unable to part the Red Sea, but is unable to separate poor Georgie from his dum-dum delusions. Or even his current trouble—namely, six sleepless nights in a row—no doubt brought on from reading the critics' reviews of this super stinker. The doctor has his own hang-up. In one scene he tries to get on the couch with Dustin.

Dustin (Georgie Soloway) is supposed to be the king of rock 'n' roll songwriters, with nothing but hit after hit—which he gets from propositioning strange dames on the street. He has loads of dough, a duplex penthouse apartment, foreign cars, wall-to-wall broads, and even a season pass to "Colonel Sanders"—yet he's unhappy. This is because he is missing the one vital thing to complete his life—his own key to the men's room!

Since Georgie has the magic touch, everybody is always looking to touch him—mostly for a loan—or to sprinkle a little of his stardust on up-and-coming new rock groups like: "The Harris Tweed Truss"... "The Un-Paid-For Cadillac"... the sensational "Ripped Zipper"... or that great new Women's Lib outfit "The Barbequed Brassiere." They all want their groups at the head of the charts. Unfortunately, poor Georgie is now at the head of the charts himself—the hospital charts. In fact, he is practically at death's door—with his doctor trying to pull him through!

Meanwhile, back at the psychiatrist's couch, we find Georgie Soloway telling the bad news about his predicament to his shrink—which is a good name for this doctor—as he not only shrinks Georgie's head, but his bank account as well. It seems the doctor is fond of using shock treatment—namely, his bill! After seeing Dr. Moses for over seven years, Georgie is still in the weirdo wilderness, but continues as a patient. This is due to the psychiatrist's brilliant gim-

low. Right away, this should have been a tip-off to the audience, especially when he is followed in quick succession by the writer, director and producer, who are obviously too chicken to face the critics, after laying such a monumental egg.

As Georgie Soloway, (Dustin Hoffman) tumbles in slow motion through space, he is seen re-writing his suicide note. Too bad he didn't do the same for the script! At this point, the picture credits are flashed on the screen. Though, why anyone would want to take credit for this picture, is beyond me. We would have all been better off, if they had flashed: "The End" instead of forcing the audience to endure the torture of end-mick of creating a "Psychosis of the Month Club"—featuring two new neuroses of George's own choice.

Dustin tells the doctor that someone named Harry Kellerman is calling up around town, bad-mouthing him and costing him four chicks, two recording contracts, and worst of all, his subscription to "Playboy." When Georgie says he feels suicidal, his psychiatrist does the only practical thing—he asks to be paid in advance. However, since Georgie has a split personality, he is able to divide the bill in half.

While in the headshrinker's office, Georgie starts to recall his early manhood, when he got a few girls into trouble—and a few girls who got him into trouble! Georgie pours out his heart in the analyst's office, whereupon the doctor acts instantly—to mop up the floor. After scenes showing Soloway being deserted by all his buddies and girl friends, Georgie gets desperate and calls "Dial-A-Prayer." After listening to a few of his problems however, they hang up on him. To make matters worse, he calls up "Suicides Anonymous" and they try to talk him into it!

And so, in the middle of the night, insecure Georgie calls up his accountant—and forces him to read the income figures from Georgie's many musical triumphs.

All the while Georgie is really thinking of different figures like 36-28-36 (in assorted blond, brunette and redhead containers). Finally, Georgie shows a flash of normal thought—he imagines his ex-wife has just jumped off the building. He figures she wants to show everybody the stuff she's made of.

After this midnight interlude by our "Midnight Cowhoy," Dustin now imagines that his psychiatrist is a witch-doctor—limiting his practice to that of doctoring witches. He also imagines that the doctor's pretty secretary is partially nude. Which shows how sick he actually is, seeing that she is really totally nude. The worst indication of Georgie's deteriorating mind however is when he starts eating grapes all the time. Now ordinarily this isn't so terrible—but off the wallpaper?

While riding around town in his limousine in search of sleep (preferably with a girl carrying a mattress) Georgie recalls an audition he attended where he met a singer named Allison. Right away he got stuck on her—as she was wearing a dress made out of fly paper. With flying on his mind, he takes her up in his private plane—which is a pretty sneaky way to get a chick high—and they finally land in her apartment. There she asks him if he thinks she's "that kind of a girl?" When Georgie answers "No" she proceeds to show him just how wrong he was.

Now Georgie reaches a true state of desperation—he heads for Brooklyn! Here his father runs a restaurant the size of a rest-room. That's O.K. since the clientele are all midgets. Georgie's old man informs him that, since his son is now a famous star, he has named a sandwich after him. Only Georgie can't get too choked up about anything called the "Soloway Salami." He soon discovers that his father is in pretty bad shape. It seems that when the father last visited a doctor he was told not to buy any long-playing records. In fact, according to medical science he's been dead for 48 hours!

We finally discover that Harry Kellerman, who has been saying all those terrible things about him, is actually Georgie, gone bananas. But, to tell the truth, anyone who has seen this picture is bound to say terrible things about Georgie. However, as was said in the beginning, at least Dustin has the decency to commit suicide to atone for his sins ... Too bad this can't be said for the other people responsible for this disaster!
